the letter press and Kathleen Wood has provided four pages of clear simple line drawings of precise elegance.

We can only express the hope that our little effort will fulfil the purpose for which it is intended.

We may add that this is our first venture with a printed not a cyclostyled bulletin. We felt that printing would be the more suitable medium in view of the hard wear that (we hope) the glossary will have. The production of this work by Mr. Gerald T. Lee leaves nothing to be desired.

It is with deep regret that we record the tragic passing of Mr. David Knowlton. Members will have learned of his terrible accident on the cliffs of Little Barrier Island. Mr. Knowlton was a member of our Society for a number of years. He carried out a fine piece of research for his master's degree on that most difficult fern genus, the genus Asplenium, and as a result of the excellence of his work, he was awarded a fellowship that would have enabled him to have continued his work for a further two years.

David Knowlton was not just a good student who was interested in his work. His subject of study was for him a burning enthusiasm. After his degree was awarded I had the pleasure of reading his thesis and was astonished at the extent and quality of his work. He had planned a long and exacting course of further research and his going will be a very real loss to New Zealand Pteridology.
